Hurricane Dorian Sunday, September 1, 2019 at 6:00PM Atlantic Beach Officials Closely Monitoring Hurricane Dorian

- We are hopeful that Hurricane Dorian will stay offshore and not create problems for us or our neighboring towns and counties on the coast of North Carolina. But its never too early to make preparations for such a huge storm as this. The storm has many possible tracks to follow before we know of its definite path towards us. Though its still unclear if or when Dorian will hit our state, residents should prepare now while there is still time.
- We urge all Atlantic Beach residents, property owners and visitors to take necessary measures to secure your personal property and effects while we have a few days to be vigilant. Review your personal emergency plans and locate your town Re-Entry Pass and monitor our media sites for future details.
- Our town departments are prepared and ready to respond as the situation requires.
- We will be under a RED FLAG warnings for the next several days for swimmers and surfers on our beaches and strongly advise against going into the water as conditions for strong rip tides will be forming.
- Sign up your cell phone and line lines for the for the Carteret County Code Red Emergency Alert Notification system. There is no charge for this service. Visit the website to sign today: <http://www.carteretcountync.gov/525/Emergency-Notification>.
